Trauma-informed care physicians training

This presentation provides the foundational science of adversity and toxic stress training on practical strategies for providing trauma-informed care.

Training will be available at no cost for viewing and continuing education credits through June 30, 2022

In our commitment toward continuous quality improvement, we are excited to be a Trauma-Informed Organization (TIO).

To support us in this effort, we have partnered with Florida State University (FSU) Center for Prevention and Early Intervention Policy. FSU is a nationally recognized center of excellence in trauma with an extensive network of national partners.

This continuing education unit (CEU) and continuing medical education (CME) approved training was conducted by national experts, Jack Shonkoff, MD and Kay Roussous Ross, MD.

You can access this training at bit.ly/3J45nYK. A post-test will appear at the end for you to complete for CEU and CME approval.
